COLD BREW & NITRO COFFEE

With the advent of “third wave” coffee, a movement that elevates high quality coffee beans and production to an artisan level similar to that appreciated for wine or cheese, there are many new ways to produce a cup of coffee, including cold brewing & nitro infusion.

Not to be confused with iced coffee, which is conventionally brewed and then poured over ice, cold brew coffee is created using cold water instead of hot water. Ground beans are combined with water, allowed to steep approximately 12 hours, and then filtered.

Infusing a drink with nitrogen is actually something that began many years ago in the beer industry. Nitro beers are rich and creamy with tiny bubbles that almost taste sharp. It's coffee that's been infused with nitrogen gas and coffee lovers say that nitro coffee is richer than straight up iced coffee. Some say it also tastes sweeter than your average cold brew

In order to present the perfect brew, specific equipment for cold brew & nitro coffee is required and we have everything you need and CBS is your trusted source for system design and component supply.

NITRO COLD BREW TRANSFER TANKS & DIFFUSION STONE

QUICK • CONVENIENT • COST EFFECTIVE

The CBS solution for Nitro coffee makes serving Nitro coffee on tap much faster and easier.

Our solution utilizes a stainless steel .5 micro diffusion stone mounted securely in the keg lid. The diffusion stone carbonates your coffee from the bottom up saving valuable time in the process nitrogenizing your brew. The convenience of the lid mounted diffusion stone allows you to reduce costs by keeping the diffuser "in house" and not shipping it away with your kegged product.
